Rossini Conservatory of Music in Pesara, and under the instruction of Massires Pedrott and Felice Coentrads such rapid improvement that three years later he was appointed to three years later he was appointed to the position of solo tenor at the church of Santa Moria in Loreto, succeeding the late tenor Caponi. After any years of lard training, Sonci completed his course of studies, and at that time he was engaged to sing the leading tenor role in Verdi's "Faistaff" at the Royal theater in Pasma. Bonci at the first appearance won a triumph and he was immediately engaged to was the little role in "Faust" at the limit verse theater in Milan. From that the tenor iscended to La Scalo, the great Scala, dreamed of by all European and American grand opera singure. At La Scala Bonci made such a success in "I Puritani" that after a few months its name was established few months his name was established as a celebrity all over Raty. He went thence to Florence, to Naples Palermo, etc., and then to Warnaw, St. Petersburg, Vienna, Hedapest, Bukharest, Berlin, Bressen, Leipzig, Barcelona, Madrid Lisben and Buence Ayres on a trium chall tour. He made a latting ture and books have been visited by collectors, and many fine pieces of china, furniture chall tour. He made a latting dilien of Ton Giovanni. Bonci is a favorite at the royal courts of Europe. At King Edward VII's reception to expression Loubet of France. Some was the only opera singer invited to appear at his majesty's concert. Bonci's superiority over other tenors lies not so much in the volume of his voice as in its exquisitely sweet weivery quality, its affects timbre, its intensition, its the slivery timbre, its infonstion, its accurate placing and most remarkable limpidity and pllability of tone. He sings everything perfectly, but the more difficult lyric operas of the old limits school, such as "I Puritami," "La Pavorita," "Ellsir D'Amore," "Riggletto," etc., are his favorites. As a concert and rectial singer be stands absolutely without a peer.
